Innovation to Impact

We believe good food belongs to people, not landfills.

From the CEO

“So glad somebody is finally doing something about this! I hate seeing all this food go to waste.”

That’s one of the most common responses we hear when we talk about what 412 Food Rescue does.

No one likes to waste food. No restaurant staff, grocery employee, or any person in the food industry feels happy about being the one to have to throw away the unsold food at the end of the day. There is a visceral reaction to taking perfectly edible food and throwing it in the garbage because there is nothing right about it.

I say that unequivocally. Nothing.

We understand that it’s a challenge. The infrastructure to support redirecting surplus from food retailers has not existed. Until now.

The goal of 412 Food Rescue has been to build that infrastructure. And as we scale in Pittsburgh, working with more than 400 food retail locations, we are reaching major milestones that break food rescue barriers. This year and beyond, we begin to share that infrastructure with other cities.

Technology is essential to making this happen. In November 2016, we launched the first version of our app, Food Rescue Hero, making it possible to coordinate thousands of volunteers. Since then, more than 4,000 people have downloaded, registered, and raised their hands to be part of our network of volunteer drivers—receiving push notifications of available food and rescuing food that’s near them.

“You mean everyone is a volunteer?”

We get this a lot too. Yes, volunteers. “How do you plan to make this sustainable?” Sometimes, we (lovingly) understand that this question means, “I’m uncomfortable with relying on people’s desire to do good.” But think about firefighters. We have more than 1.1 million firefighters in the U.S. – almost 70% of whom are volunteers. People step up. We just need to give everyone a chance to do so.

Here’s a great statistic: Our service level stands at 99%. We miss only one percent of available food rescues. And our volunteers—our Food Rescue Heroes—have completed more than 18,000 of them in three years. This year alone, we will complete as many. Or more.

We have sparked unprecedented civic engagement—building the largest volunteer food transport network in the U.S. It is reliable. It is resilient. And grows more each day.

At 412 Food Rescue, we believe in people. Our technology is powered by everyone’s desire to do good.

2011

Jonathan Bloom wrote “American Wasteland: How America Throws Away Nearly Half of Its Food (and What We Can Do About It),” catalyzing awareness for the food we waste.

2012

National Resources Defense Council released the landmark report “Wasted: How America is Losing Up to 40% of its Food from Farm to Fork to Landfill.” It is the most downloaded report in NRDC history.

Tristram Stuart gave a TEDSalon Talk in London, “The Global Food Waste Scandal.” It has been viewed more than 1.5 million times.

2018

Paul Hawken wrote the New York Times bestseller “Drawdown: The Most Comprehensive Plan Ever Proposed to Reverse Global Warming.” Of the 100 most substantive solutions to reverse global warming, reducing food waste has the third largest impact on the environment.

People care about food waste.

Media coverage about food waste grew 25% per year from 2011-2016

In a 2016 poll, 74% of adults reported that the issue of wasted food was important to them.

We need to act.

In 2012, The European Parliament passed a resolution to halve food waste in the European Union by 2025.

The United Nations agreed on the need to halve per capita food waste in the consumer and retail sectors and reduce food loss along production and supply chains by 2030 as part of the Global Sustainable Development Goals.

In 2015, Food Recovery Act was introduced to Congress, the first food waste bill in the U.S. It was followed by the Food Date Labeling Act and the Food Waste Transparency Act. The same year the U.S. government declared a similar national 50% food waste reduction goal by 2030.

We have a long way to go.

The EPA prioritizes the strategies for food recovery. The top levels of the hierarchy are the best ways to prevent and divert wasted food because they create the most benefits for the environment, society, and the economy.

We believe good food belongs to people, not landfills.

412 Food Rescue was founded to address the disconnect between food waste, food insecurity, and environmental sustainability. The fact that we waste 40% of our food is an extraordinary opportunity we cannot ignore.

Our Mission

412 Food Rescue's mission is to prevent perfectly good food from entering the waste stream and redirect to nonprofits that serve those who are food insecure. We believe good food belongs to people, not landfills.

The problem of food waste in the retail sector.

Traditional logistics models do not work for food recovery at the retail level. Food surplus at the retail sector is difficult to recover for many reasons. Food retail is a highly distributed network. Food surplus at wholesale and retail can be unpredictable with relatively small quantities of food at each location.

Food at retail is approaching the end of its useful life – produce is ripe or approaching its expiration date. It needs to be used right away and will not survive the time lag of a truck-warehouse distribution model.

While smaller in quantity at each location – food surplus at retail, when aggregated, accounts for almost half of all food that is wasted.

In November 2016, we launched our app “Food Rescue Hero.”

We move people to move food.

Our technology enables us to access a network of more than 4,000 drivers – our Food Rescue Heroes – the largest volunteer food transport network in a single urban region. This network grows everyday.

Food rescue changes the way we volunteer and participate in civic action. It is quick, easy, timely, and of-the-moment. The rewards are immediate and direct – volunteers see their impact right away. Driving all over the region, volunteers visit and get to know communities, creating relationships that may not have happened otherwise.

412 Food Rescue is probably the coolest nonprofit that Pittsburgh could have ever come up with. It's just the perfect opportunity for families, community members, anybody, to get involved and do something as simple as going to one location and picking up something...and giving it to an agency who would completely benefit from it.

“ Rebecca Maclean

It's such a great way to be a small part of something that makes a big impact. Our regular runs are less than an hour a week. We spend more time than that in a week running off at the mouth in our local coffee shop. 412 Food Rescue told us recently we'd rescued over 2,000 pounds of food in June of this year. A ton of food in a month saved from the landfill! How many people did we help to feed? All in time that is easy to set aside. It's mind boggling.

“ Melinda Angeles

The best experience I have when I volunteer is when I deliver the food and the people I deliver to hug me! Meeting people that I wouldn't normally meet, it's so nice to be able to make these connections with people I wouldn't normally come across.

“ Paul Jackson

The biggest highlight is having fun while doing something for others, it brings me joy and laughter after shoving 500 loaves of bread in my car floor to ceiling. And then seeing the looks on the faces of the people I drop it off to when they see my car.

“ John Seiffer

412 Food Rescue is the missing link between those that have food but for some reason that food is unsellable and the people who need food but don't have enough food.

“ Dee Seiffer

It's such an easy thing to do, it would feel like a shame to not do it. And it makes such a difference to people. I can't think of another way that I could spend my time with so little effort to have so much impact.

“ Luke Taiclet

When you take food to people, you learn a lot of stories about what's going on in the area in terms of food insecurity. They start telling their stories. Many communities have populations who live in some type of subsidized housing and they are 65 years old and they only have support from a food standpoint that lasts them for maybe three weeks each month. Then they have a week where there is nothing. Other places you go to are food deserts and the dollar store is where they buy their food. When you start hearing those stories, it makes you want to do even more because you realize the impact your little carload of stuff has for individuals — and it makes you come back.

Transport + Distribution

“The Amazon
of Food Rescue”

Bridging the last mile: The new frontier in food access.

412 Food Rescue is focused on revolutionizing the LAST MILE of the logistics chain. We get food to people who need it most. To where they already are. Transport innovation is the first step. Then we must look at food distribution with an equally innovative lens.

To distribute surplus food, we partner with more than 450 nonprofits in the Greater Pittsburgh region. With food pantries and soup kitchens but also beyond traditional food-access networks. To bring food access closer to those who need it.

“ QUARTZ, SEPTEMBER 2017

Urban logistics have confounded experts and optimists for decades. Despite the technical revolution that is transforming logistics at distribution centers and shipping routes, it has barely touched last-mile delivery in the world's metropolises.

“ PUBLIC SOURCE, MARCH 2018

Even with thousands of people working and volunteering toward eradicating hunger, organizations estimate charity still only reaches about four percent of local people in need, and many more improvements to existing systems and policies are needed to make a dent.

Poverty. Food deserts. Transit deserts.

We discuss food deserts and food access. But we have not talked about the impact of poor transit access and transit deserts on food access.

In the U.S.

25%

of those in poverty do not have access to cars.

In Allegheny County

14%

of households do not have access to cars.

In Pittsburgh

only 25%

of households without access to vehicles are near high frequency transit with full day service

only 33%

of households making $25,000 or less are near high frequency transit with full day service

76.5%

of renter households in Allegheny County do not have cars, consistent across all counties in Southwestern PA

“ PITTSBURGH QUARTERLY, FALL 2016

Some food pantries report that more than half of their clients come less than three times a year—which leaves a huge gap because households that experience food insecurity, experience it for long periods of time.

412 Food Rescue bridges the gap by bringing food to where people are.

412 Food Rescue believes that everyone has a right to healthy food and our model of recovery and redistribution not only gives access to healthy food, it allows us to bring food to where people are—overcoming two other barriers to food access: transportation and time. Those who are in poverty have limited mobility and this impacts all aspects of their lives, including getting to places where they can access food.

We partner with housing authorities, subsidized daycare centers, senior centers, after-school programs, family and community centers — services that are already accessed everyday.

A new distribution model. Food within reach.

412 Food Rescue has created a highly resilient food surplus transport and distribution network. At scale, it has potential to be one of the most impactful innovations in hunger intervention.

“ MICHELLE SANDIDGE,
CHIEF COMMUNITY AFFAIRS OFFICER,
HOUSING AUTHORITY OF THE CITY OF PITTSBURGH

HACP’s relatively recent collaboration with 412 Food Rescue has managed to effectively end hunger in our public housing communities. Historically, our communities have averaged five to seven emergency referrals for families without food each month. Over the course of the past six months, however, HACP has received zero referrals for families without food. We attribute this dramatic success to the ongoing efforts of 412 Food Rescue.

Their services have delivered literally tons of food directly to the residents of our communities, directly improving the food security situation for roughly 2,000 low-income senior citizens and low-income families.

We conducted a series of studies to assess the impact of the food we distribute.

We worked with Dr. Catherine Greeno from the University of Pittsburgh's School of Social Work to conduct a series of surveys. Our objective was to assess the impact of surplus food distribution on food insecurity.

From December 2017 to February 2018 we completed the survey with more than 310 recipients from over 20 sites we serve. We measured satisfaction and the impact of food rescue on food insecurity - changes that recipients perceived after receiving distribution of surplus food.

Findings confirmed that people are satisfied with the food, and use all or almost all of it. Recipients report that food distributions help in alleviating food insecurity factors. The survey is a tool that can be used for continued quality assurance, and could also be adopted by other food rescue organizations.

“ Helps feed me and my son when we are down to nothing and we have to wait until our next shopping date which can be weeks away.

“ I would not make it through the end of the month foodwise without this.

“ I can provide for my family.

“ It helps out so much and especially those who are homebound and can't cook or go to the store.

“ KATE SAFIN, EAST END FOOD CO-OP

412 Food Rescue helps get the fresh, healthy food from the Co-op into the community. There is incredible value in making what we have to offer accessible and available to more people, especially those who may not have as many opportunities to access fresh fruits and vegetables. A diet that includes nourishing whole foods is very transformative and leads to a healthier, happier community.

“ MAGGIE CARTY,
CONSUMER FRESH PRODUCE

We really like seeing the reports from 412 Food Rescue on what we donate annually. It’s amazing to see the numbers for what the food does, and how it affects our world. Additionally, our products are perishable so it’s critical that when it’s time for it to leave our warehouse, it gets to those who need it quickly. 412 Food Rescue ensures that it does.

Nonprofit Partner Heroes

“ EMILY LARSEN,
PROVIDENCE CONNECTIONS

Our partnership with 412 Food Rescue not only helps ease the worries of our food insecure families and introduces fresh produce, but it also helps us teach the children in our care about the value of imperfect fruits and vegetables and of service to others. Our children don't just eat the food, they help prepare it for distribution, whether they are sorting strawberries, arranging baskets of apples or using the donated produce to practice their knife skills, turning ugly and bruised cantaloupes into grab-and-go containers of freshly cut melon that make it easy for anyone to add fresh fruit to their diet. 412 Food Rescue gives us more than just food, it give us the opportunity to teach valuable culinary and community service skills.

“ DEBBIE BAUMILLER,
NORTHERN AREA MULTISERVICE CENTER (NAMS)

412 Food Rescue has been a huge blessing to us, because we're uniquely positioned to be able to identify needs on individual and community levels. However, until 412 Food Rescue came into our lives, we were always scrambling to distribute too-few resources to too-many people. Working with 412 Food Rescue has improved the quality of health and life for many of our consumers, and we look forward to continuing our great partnership.

Technology Increases Velocity

Other Programs

We are committed to introducing innovative solutions to scale food recovery in urban regions.

412 Food Rescue's portfolio of food recovery initiatives ranges from building technology and logistics infrastructure to creating new markets for products that redirect good food from feeding landfills to feeding people.

412 Food Rescue works on food waste across the supply chain.

UglyCSA

We create new markets for previously unsellable produce— benefiting farmers and preserving the resources that went into food production.

Piloted in 2016, in partnership with Penn's Corner Farm Alliance, our UglyCSA has grown to be the fifth largest CSA program in the region.

Food Education

We believe that food education is crucial to our mission of healthy food for all.

We are the regional partner for Share Our Strength's award-winning Cooking Matters curriculum—a nationally recognized food education initiative that spans six weeks and is designed to “help families shop for and cook healthy meals on a budget.”

We deliver these programs to our nonprofit partners and equip them to teach the classes themselves—creating a source of food education for everyone.

Our goal is to open 100 Cooking Schools in the region.

HIDDEN HARVEST

Our volunteers glean fruits and vegetables from both public and privately owned trees, orchards, farms and gardens to provide fresh food options for our nonprofit partners.

Product Innovation

We launch innovative products from food that would otherwise be wasted.

Our product collaborations support our fundraising and awareness campaigns, introducing a new way to stoke conversations about food waste.
